REFLECTION

What you understood well

You showed the strongest instincts around Ownership — recognizing patterns in how that dimension of work plays out.

Where you tended to over-assign responsibility

You generally avoided pinning big problems on a single department — a good instinct for organizational thinking.

Where you underestimated collaboration

You consistently pulled in a reasonable number of teams when situations called for it.

Many real workplace problems are solved by teams rather than individuals — even when one department is ultimately accountable for the outcome.

STAGE 1 — WHO OWNS THIS?

Your ownership call for each ticket, the correct primary owner, and who else may assist.

1 A vendor invoice was accidentally paid twice.

✓ Correct owner: 💰 Finance

Your pick: 💰 Finance — matched the correct owner.

Finance owns payments and reconciliation — they can identify the duplicate and recover the funds.

⚙️ Operations (assists)

💻 IT / Systems (assists)

2 An employee files a harassment complaint against a manager.

✓ Correct owner: 👤 HR

Your pick: 👤 HR — matched the correct owner.

HR owns employee conduct and workplace investigations — they're trained to handle complaints fairly and confidentially.

⚖️ Legal (assists)

🕒 Executive (assists)

3 A client complains that their shipment is a week late.

✓ Correct owner: ⚙️ Operations

Your pick: ⚙️ Operations — matched the correct owner.

Operations owns fulfillment and logistics — they can trace where the shipment stalled.

💛 Customer Relations (assists)

📧 Sales (assists)

STAGE 2 — TASK ROUTING

The workflow order you built for each ticket compared with the common routing path.

1 A customer requests a refund for a defective product.

3/3 steps matched the common workflow.

Your route: 🧡 Customer Relations → ⚙️ Operations → 💰 Finance

Common route: 🧡 Customer Relations → ⚙️ Operations → 💰 Finance

Customer Relations logs the request, Operations verifies the defect is real, then Finance processes the actual refund.

2 A large order needs to be fulfilled and invoiced.

4/4 steps matched the common workflow.

Your route: 📊 Sales → ⚙️ Operations → 💰 Finance → 🧡 Customer Relations

Common route: 📊 Sales → ⚙️ Operations → 💰 Finance → 🧡 Customer Relations

Sales confirms the order, Operations fulfills it, Finance issues the invoice, and Customer Relations confirms delivery satisfaction.

3 A new employee is starting next week and needs full setup.

3/3 steps matched the common workflow.

Your route: 👤 HR → 💻 IT / Systems → ⚙️ Operations

Common route: 👤 HR → 💻 IT / Systems → ⚙️ Operations

HR triggers onboarding, IT provisions accounts and equipment, and Operations preps the physical workspace.

STAGE 3 — COLLABORATION CHALLENGE

The teams you pulled in for each incident, plus the primary owner and communication flow.

1 Customer satisfaction suddenly drops across the board.

✓ Primary owner: 🧡 Customer Relations

Your selected teams: 🧡 Customer Relations, ⚙️ Operations, 🔔 Marketing, 🕒 Executive

⚙️ Operations

🔔 Marketing

🕒 Executive

Customer Relations feels it first, but the root cause is often operational. Marketing tracks sentiment, and Executive weighs in if it's company-wide.
